

Our purpose and role

Fremantle Ports is an economic powerhouse that performs a critical role in facilitating trade in Western Australia, the nation's best performing State economy.

For 126 years, the port has been a key import and export location on the Australian continent, continually innovating and adapting to provide customers and the community with the best possible trade opportunities.

We continue to excel across a range of measures, including port efficiency, financial performance, environmental standards and our contributions to the community.
